Excerpt: . . . 1984003108-TSB02 Hover teats for out-of-the-wind conditions where the aircraft is required to i establish hover trim conditions with respect to a relative wind at various azimuthal angles to the aircraft centerllne are called critical azimuth tests. The significance of these tests is illustrated in the interrelation and phasing of the controls with changes in the relative wind direction. The comparison of the simulation and flight-test results is shown in figure 23. The results need to be considered con-currently with the previouslyldiscussed In-ground-effect control-positlon data. , Fidelity in this area is necessary to simulate hlgH-workload tasks such as the hover and landing. The results are satisfactory and indicate a reasonable fldelity with the aircraft performance. Static longitudinal stability characteristics for both a 70-knot and a llo-knot airspeed trim point were compared, and the data are presented in figure 24. These data, particularly the force gradient, affect the pilots ability to fly a selected airspeed without retrllmmlng. Around the llo-knot trim, the force...

Reviews

This book is definitely not straightforward to get started on studying but extremely exciting to read. It is really simplistic but shocks in the 50 percent of the ebook. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.
