Excerpt: .at his house, excepting himself, had grown up, and he wanted somebody to play with besides grown-up people, who always said, Now I must finish my sewing, as mamma did; or Now I must go down-town, as papa did; or Yes, darling, by and by, as sister did. He hoped the extra ones would be boys, for he felt quite sure that he would rather have a little brother than a little sister. As they drove into the grounds about the house where Edith lived, Baby Maxwell clutched his birthday package very firmly in his little hand, and looked out, first on one side of the carriage and then on the other, to see if any of his old Mother Goose friends were there. The carriage drew up at the veranda steps, and, sure enough, Little BoPeep came running out. He knew it was...
