Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Pictures On My Pillow: An Oceanographer s Exploration of the Symbols of Self-Transcendence is the entertaining, lucid and thought-provoking autobiography of Dr. Patrick B. Crean, a Canadian ocean scientist and accomplished amateur philosopher/theologian. Written frankly and with great period detail, Crean s accounts are buoyed by an inimitable wit and a poignant recounting of his childhood, between the great wars, in rural England. The family home was a cottage on the expansive grounds of Alexander Pope s famous villa and grotto, in Patrick s day a convent school on the banks of the River Thames. Thus were his protective friends and life-long supporters fondly remembered as the kitchen sisters . The formative years of this bright lad would include an innocent recognition of the influence of dream imagery, hence the book s title, as well as being steeped in the benign qualities of faith lived with sincere practicality and authenticity. The latter in direct opposition to what he later experienced as the surd of religious, personal, professional politics - intransigent authoritarianism. In 1944 he was accepted into...
