Deposits Glaciated rocks south of Poplar Lodge. of the same kind are now in process of formation at the mouth of Sturgeon river, varying and shifting in different seasons by the swinging of the river channel at its outlet. Smaller streams, like Sand creek at Poplar lodge, are doing similar work on a corresponding scale. The sinking of the level of lake Warren and its successors seems to have been stepwise, to judge by the succession of terraces. How far north the stratified lake sands extend is not yet determined, but they are found well developed at the first falls on Red Paint river a few miles above its mouth, where the portage trail crosses a flat sand plain about 100 feet above the river below the falls, which is perhaps a foot or two above lake Nipigon. Beyond this to the northeast no well defined old water levels were observed as far as the watershed between lake Nipigon and Hudson bay. Some low sand tracts have been noted along the shore of lake Nipigon beyond Red Paint river, but none rising more than a few feet, and it is doubtful if the higher beaches extend quite to the northeast side of the lake, where the drift consists of morainic materials little modified by water action. Deposits Toward the southern end of lake Nipigon from Sturgeon river towards Virgin falls, most of the low ground is hidden by sand plains and...
